We strongly encourage you to follow the proper procedures to become PCI compliant. Our risk management department warns merchants to use caution when accepting unsolicited telephone and internet orders. A fraudster will contact merchants via email using generic g-mail, hot mail, or yahoo email addresses. The fraudster executes the scheme by providing unsuspecting merchants with card numbers that are not theirs. Most sales are very large and are not typical for your normal course of business. It is commonly requested that the product be shipped out of the country by the most expeditious means possible. If you do not normally receive foreign orders, that is a red flag to contact us prior to running the transaction and shipping the item. Beware of customers who request money wire for shipping costs or insuring the product to be shipped.

Do not allow anyone to update or reprogram your credit card terminal unless you have initiated a change to your account, such as a name or address change. Protect your personal and business information. If you are ever in doubt, please contact the customer service phone number listed below.
